

Information Sheet

Please fill out this information sheet for me, even if you are uncertain whether you will continue with the course, and irrespective of whether you are taking the course for credit. Fill out (all relevant parts of) this sheet if you are considering taking the course or attending lectures. (Your answers will be confidential, and not used for nefarious purposes.) While filling out this sheet is a requirement for all students attending the lectures, students outside the Harvard Economics, Business Economics, or PEG PhD programs who have not contacted me separately will not be admitted to the course (or dropped if already admitted) if you do not supply the information I need to determine eligibility.

NAME _____
(Include both name as it appears on transcripts, etc., and as you preferred to be addressed. Please include pronunciation help if you think it might be needed.)

Preferred e-mail address (printed clearly) _____

Are you taking the course for credit (either for a letter grade or S/U)? Circle one of the following:

Positively yes

probably not

when hell freezes over

Please answer the following questions. Anybody is welcome to attend lectures, but I appreciate knowing who may be doing so, so please fill this out even if planning only to attend. But for all who did not answer “when hell freezes over” to the preceding question, I need your answers to the next two (bundles of) bold questions to determine whether you can take the course for credit.

What program are you in? (e.g., Harvard Economics Dept. PhD student.) What stage are you in the program? (e.g., 2nd year, post-fields, thesis writer; similarly give a sense of your stage for other campus departments.) Are you an undergraduate? Major? If you are not a regular Harvard PhD student, from where are you visiting? If you are a student there, describe your stage. (Or if you are a visiting scholar, describe your status at your home institution.)

Have you taken Economics Department First-Year Micro courses at Harvard? If yes, what year? What were your grades in the courses? If not, please state other PhD-level or advanced microeconomic preparation for this course.

Did you take Economics 2030? Do you intend to take it in the future? (This is for information—it is not a prerequisite for this course).

What field exams have you already taken? What do you intend to write your field exams in?

If you are currently writing your dissertation (or thinking of planning to contemplate writing your dissertation), describe briefly what specific area have you been working on? Do you have a primary advisor yet? If so, who?

If you were a type of household appliance or literary genre, what type of household appliance or literary genre would you be? Explain. What household appliance or literary genre would you want to be? Explain.

Add any additional comments that you think might be relevant (e.g., what you intend to get out of the course, your background, topics that interest you).
